Kingsdale is seen as a hub of connections, relationships, and family activities and, situated as it is within a triangle of major roadways, it is a hidden treasure house of opportunities and possibilities. To respond to the idea of the centre as a treasure house, glass artist Gordon Wright created 39 hand-crafted glass discs that are suspended from the ceiling of the building in front of a bank of windows. The glass roundels, like unique jewels, glow in swirled rainbow colours.
